A. D. JERVIS PRESIDENT OF LOCAL COMPANY

Plant Here Has Capacity to Care
For Their Future
Growth

(By J. E. Blair.)

If every family could have a spring and a spring house; if every family could have a deep well, etc., etc., there would be no urgent need of refrigerators. If all killed their meat at home and ate it at once—in a word, if everybody lived under "their own vine and fig tree," and all that kind of thing—there would be no urgent need of ice boxes. If everybody could have deep storage ice houses and weather every year sufficient to freeze the water hard and thick, there need not have been any such business as the ice factory now located on the south bank of the Tennessee River.

But because our meats are killed thousands of miles away—but argument is superfluous—the fact is, ice and ice boxes are as much a necessity now as are corn dodgers, bulk meat and ice cream. Realizing the demand for ice, and with a desire to serve themselves and the community, such men as John F. Scott, L. M. Faulk, J. D. Jervis and A. D. Jervis (all these men have held the office of president of the Decatur Ice Company, and A. D. Jervis is now the president, set about establishing the only ice making concern in the community. Their books show the names of the incorporators of the company and that they began their work Feb. 12, 1887, over 35 years ago. Others of the incorporators, in addition to the men mentioned, were such men as William Littlejohn and C. C. Harris. The present secretary and superintendent, T. J. Jones, could furnish a complete list of the early stockholders of this concern. H. B. Beard is the ice factory vice-president.

Ammonia Rules.

Cold is merely the absence of heat. Therefore, the one problem to solve in making ice artificially is to remove all the heat from around the water you plan to freeze into ice. But you cannot remove heat like you would a splinter. Chemical forces have to be used to isolate heat. And a certain chemical called ammonia, is the agency used at the local ice factory, to bring about the freezing of the water in the hundreds of freezing-cans, each one with a capacity of 300 pounds (when the factory first started the cans used were 100 pounds capacity). It should be borne in mind that it costs close to 40 cents a pound, and that it takes 8,000 pounds to "charge" the local plant. And this statement brings on more talk—since ammonia costs so much, it follows that it must be used over and over again if it is to be made at a profit. You cannot use it and then cast it aside like you do water. So after ammonia has done its work, it must be put to work again. The ammonia is bought in liquid form; it does its work as a gas, and from gas it must be returned to liquid. It takes a lot of pipes, heat, steam and cold water to accomplish this, but it is done every day at the factory.

How to Make Ice.

Picture to yourself several hundred zinc cans all standing in rows, with a small space between each can, and each can resting on the concrete floor of an immense tank and all at once you see a flood of water come into the tank and finally completely surround every can up to its brim. The cans are filled with water. If you taste the lake of water surrounding the cans, you will find it is as salty as the Dead Sea. Why? Be-

REMAKING OLD NEWSPAPER INTO NEW

The suitability of Bentonite, a clay found in Wyoming, for removing ink from old newspapers so that they may be used again as clear, white, standard newsprint, has been demonstrated by the U. S. Forestry Service on both experimental and commercial scales. The clay is added in powdered form, and, because of its highly colloidal character, finely divided state and suspension qualities, the particles of carbon removed from the repulped newspaper in the beater, adhere to the particles of clay and are carried off through the washing screens in the beater. The experiments were conducted at the Forest Products Laboratory at Madison, Wis.

Enthusiastic Meeting Held Today By Striking Shopmen at Masonic

A large and very enthusiastic meeting of the rail strikers was held at the Masonic Theater this morning, and closed at 10:10 with prayer by S. E. Roper. Mr. Roper and the chaplain, L. E. Toon cautioned the men, that if directly or indirectly any of their friends were encouraging intimidation or violence to ask them to stop it, especially in view of the evident attempts being made to discredit the local shop communities. The men were invited to attend their respective churches on Sunday. The greatest enthusiasm was aroused over the reports of Messrs Roper, Moats, Black and Blakenship of their experiences before Judge William I. Grubb, and concerning their successful efforts in raising $52,000.00 bond money. The bonds being signed jointly by Gillespie a Birmingham Carman, formerly of Albany and L. B. Musgrove of Jasper. Mr. Roper had the bonds with him at the direction of Judge Grubb. And the second highest enthusiasm was aroused by the reading of the statement of President Maypothor of the L. & N., as made public by C. E. Sorensen who was described as "Ford executive."

The men remained in the best of humor as the entire Maypothor interview, as vouched for by Sorensen, and written by Frank J. Taylor staff correspondent of the Birmingham Post, was read by a member of the publicity committee. Musgrove Cheered Following reports of all the standing committees, the sick relief committee stating that several voluntary donations had been made. J. A. Blakenship, spoke immediately preceding Mr. Roper. Rev. Blakenship was among those arrested and sent to Birmingham. Mr. Roper said he understood the minister was "charged with picketing," but Rev. Blakenship declared "I did not know for what I was arrested for unless it was for holding a protracted meeting up in Tennessee."

"While these arrests in my opinion were made," said the preacher, "to hurt our cause, they have served a good cause, they have welded us into an even stronger brotherhood." The speaker's words were loudly cheered. He expressed the conviction that unless "we begin heaven on this earth there will be none for us beyond the grave."

Roper Praises, Gillespie, Wert, and Musgrove.

In his formal address S. E. Roper took occasion to commend the tenacity of Judge Thomas W. Wert, in helping him find bondsmen for the local men ordered before Judge Grubb at Birmingham yesterday. Roper said "as we hurried along I asked Judge, how about a little lunch, but he said 'no sir, I do not eat or drink until these men are either in or out.'" Cheers for Musgrove broke out as refused the surety offered him by Judge Wert, in case he went on the bond of the strikers Musgrove declaring "I want to take some risks myself in this fight."

Musgrove agreed to sign the $52,000.00 worth of bonds on one condition that one other man worth as much as $10,000.00 in taxable property also sign. Mr. Roper said he found such a man in the person of a Mr. Gillespie, a Birmingham carman, and a former resident of the Twin Cities. On motion of Roper, seconded by scores, the secretary was directed to send a letter of appreciation to the strikers of Birmingham who had so royally entertained their associates while they were in the Magic city. This motion was amended by H. C. Hutchison so as that Mr. Gillespie and L. B. Musgrove be included. In his short address J. W. Motes of South Albany as had Rev. Blakenship previously, denounced the prison fare offered at the Morgan county jail—declaring "it was not fit for a human being to eat." I. M. Black, striker who on the trips to and from Birmingham, became to be known as the life and wit of the company, spoke at some length, fully sustaining his alleged reputation. Severe condemnation was expressed because of confirmed reports that business and professional men were seeking to make a joke of the seniority rights of rail workers—the reputed "bone of contention"—in the present controversy between the railroad executives and the men. Regarding "working under guns" as one speaker expressed it, the following was read from Arthur Brisbane as appearing in the morning's Age-Herald:

Men owning railroads, that have never done a day's real work in their lives, find it difficult to understand this attitude. It can be made clear to them. Suppose the owners, as they sit directing railroads in their Wall street offices, found themselves working under the supervision of union leaders with loaded "automatics" in their hands. Suppose here and there a shot were fired and an "owner" dropped dead in his nicely furnished office. How would the owners like it? Wouldn't they say, "Call my limousine. I am going home to stay until

MUSCLE SHOALS VOTE

Tennessee Democrats Organize
For State Campaign Against The Republicans

(International News Service.)

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 12.—Attempts of Republicans to extend the present recess of the House of Representatives after August 15 will be blocked by the Democrats unless a definite agreement is reached for a vote on the Henry Ford offer to develop Muscle Shoals.

This statement was made here today by Finis J. Garrett, minority leader of the House, who leaves tonight for Washington. Mr. Garrett is in Nashville attending a conference of state Democratic leaders in regard to the perfection of plans for an organized fight to return Tennessee to the Democratic fold in the November election.

"Only a few days ago," Mr. Garrett said, "I received a telegram from F. H. Barrow, executive clerk to majority leader Mondell, insisting that I extend the recess after Aug. 15. This I promised to do if assured of a vote on Muscle Shoals, but not otherwise. So far I have not received a reply from Mr. Mondell. The Democrats will demand a Muscle Shoals vote early in September," Mr. Garrett added.

RAILROADS GIVEN UNTIL OCTOBER 15 TO REDUCE FARES

(Montgomery Bureau,
Albany-Decatur Daily.)

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Aug. 12.—Alabama railroads were given until Oct. 15 to reduce their passenger rates from 3.6 cents to 3 cents a mile under a modified order issued by the Public Service Commission Friday. The original order required the railroads to reduce their passenger rate Aug. 15.

The commission denied the request of the railroads for a postponement of the operation of the order until the Interstate Commerce Commission had handed down a general decision regarding passenger rates. The railroads had asked the Alabama commission to permit the federal commission to handle the question in order that passenger rates might be uniform throughout the nation.

The commission granted the petition of the Birmingham Water Works Company for a certificate of convenience and necessity permitting the extension of the water mains to Boyles and Tarrant City and also approved the franchise agreements between the company and the governments of Boyles and Tarrant City.

Another general order confirmed the commission's emergency order which made effective the Interstate Commerce Commission's emergency order regarding the priority of freight shipments. By this order the federal order will also apply to interstate traffic in Alabama.

National Rail System Feels Effect of The Strike In Earnest

27 PER CENT OF BIG 4

Two Weeks May Find Greater

Idle

(By International News Service.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—The strangle hold of the powerful railway brotherhoods on the railroad strike situation began to be felt in earnest throughout the country today.

Brotherhood leaders today informed the International News Service that 102,850 men have deserted their posts to date, due to defective rolling stock.

Of the 355,000 railway employees coming within the jurisdiction of the "Big Four" brotherhoods, 89,000 are locomotive engineers, 60,000 are conductors, 120,000 firemen and engine-men and 186,000 trainmen. Of this total 27 per cent are officially declared to have already walked out.

"If the ratio of individual strike action increases," an official of the locomotive engineers' brotherhood declared, "another two weeks will find the rolling stock of all the railroads idle on the tracks and the commerce of the nation at a standstill."

JOINT CONFERENCE ON MINERS WAGE IS NEAR AGREEMENT

(By International News Service.)

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 12.—Operators and miners here for the interstate conference, by which it is hoped to establish a basic wage that will end the nation-wide strike and avert a coal famine this winter, see in the renewed opposition by powerful interests in the four states field, a desire to "profiteer" in the price of fuel this winter as well as to grab markets which have heretofore belonged to other sections of the field, it was said here today.

A leading operator stated here today that the success of the present movement was the only hope of averting a fuel famine this winter of tremendous proportions.

That an agreement will be reached very quickly was the consensus of opinion here today. Both operators and miners were optimistic of the outcome, although it was thought that the conference might continue into next week.

Immediately after the reconvening of the joint scale sub-committee today, adjournment was taken to permit operators and miners to hold separate caucuses. This was interpreted as an indication that there might be some important development today.

The joint conference will be resumed at 1 o'clock.

COTTON MARKET.

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—The cotton market opened steady today at an advance of 4 to 13 points. The market was influenced by the dry weather and the trade buying. The selling came from Wall Street and room traders on the strike situation.

'COMPROMISE PLAN' WILL BE SUBMITTED BY RAILROAD CHIEFS TO PRESIDENT TODAY

Roads Declared to Have Neither

Proposals

COMMITTEE PRESENTS
ANSWER SATURDAY

Fact Reply Sent In Person Instead of Wire, Raises
Hopes

(By International News Service.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—A compromise plan, which neither surrenders the position of the railroads nor rejects flatly President Harding's plan for an armistice in the rail strike will be presented to President Harding at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon by a committee headed by T. DeWitt Cuyler, chairman of the Association of Railway Executives.

The official statement, issued after six and one-half hours' parley behind closed doors in the Grand Central, was non-communative, but hints and phrases dropped by various officials indicated the following had occurred:

(a) The "hardshells," those executives who believe the president's plan should be rejected in toto, had lost their fight.

(b) The "soft shells," those who favored accepting the plan as the best way out of a ticklish situation, had been forced to make heavy compromises to avoid the conference being deadlocked.

(c) The executives will expect further interpretation of the Harding plan before they can begin to restore the old men to their places with full seniority.

(d) The compromise plan to include the following points:

Agreement of the roads to take back the strikers as fast as they can be absorbed; strikebreakers who have become efficient to be retained and their seniority to rank above that of old men coming back, unless the railway labor board rules otherwise; the rights of the strikebreakers to be guarded in every particular and the word of the rail heads—that those men will be retained—to be scrupulously kept.

These, in the main, are said to be the principal items in the document which the committee will hand the president.

The matter of the executives keeping their word with the strikebreakers and the few men who stayed on their jobs is declared to be one of the features and it is this point which virtually makes a compromise of the answer.

The fact that the reply will be presented by a committee and not telegraphed, as was the answer to the first proposal made by the president, is taken as an indication that the executives have found common ground on which they can stand with Harding.

Brandon Campaign Cost Him $9,400

(Montgomery Bureau,
Albany-Decatur Daily.)

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Aug. 12.—Judge W. W. Brandon's successful campaign for governor of Alabama in the primary Tuesday cost him $9,400, of which $8,876.50 was contributed by his friends, according to his post-election expense account filed with the secretary of state today by A. E. Jackson of Hartselle, treasurer of his campaign committee. After the pre-election statement was filed Judge Brandon received total contributions of $350, while his additional expenditures were $879.81.

Chief Justice John C. Anderson, nominee for another term, spent $579.37. Congressman John R. Tyson of the Second District, renominated, gave his total expense account as $934.75.

WE FAVOR ACCEPTANCE OF HENRY FORD'S BID
FOR MUSCLE SHOALS.EXCUSES."They All With One Accord Began to Make Excuses."—Luke 14:18.

They say that all you need to do to get rich is to make something the world wants and then let the world know about it. Well, on that same principle, if you want to get poor, make something the world does not want. Let it be known or not—the result is the same. You may as well select a room in the poor house and get ready for your trip thereunto.

Of all things the world has the least use for it is excuses, and there are many people who are experts in making them. They produce this undesired article in large or small quantities on short notice. Nobody wants them, but the excuse factory continues to grind. Failing in a given duty, the shirker can tell you lots of reasons why he failed. But the world wants its goods, not reasons why it cannot get them. It demands success—it is unconcerned about explanations. If you desire to catch a train you want your taxi to deliver you at the depot on time. Explanations about why it got you there two minutes after the train pulled out are of no value to you.

If we recall correctly, the servants who were on the job in the parable reported their success in fourteen words. The shirker took forty-two to explain his failure. His master did not accuse him of active sin. He cast him out for the sin of sloth. He wanted results. He had no interest in explanations.

The market for completed tasks is very keen. The call for excuses is nil.—Jackson News.

GERMAN PLEA FOR RELIEF IS GIVEN A SHARP REBUKE.

The effort of the German government to play upon the sympathies of the Allied governments by making claims that it is impossible to meet the reparations payments because of the financial crisis prevailing, loses some of its force when it is known that Germany has been keeping from 60,000,000 to 70,000,000 French francs on deposit in Paris banks. This money was hurriedly removed from Paris by Germany when France threatened to seize German money in the banks of Alsace-Lorraine a few days ago.

Germany is hard up. There can be no question about it. The German mark, the standard of money in that country, has become almost worthless and the German people are enduring the hardships of excessively high prices with a greatly depreciated currency to meet them, but Germany is not so hard-up as she pretends.

The Mobile Register says: "The loud protestations of Germany that she cannot pay indemnity instalments as due; and that she is in default of payment of two million francs instalment on private debts contracted before the war with French subjects, are discounted by a cable dispatch of August 4. That dispatch states that within the previous forty-eight hours the German government had hurriedly moved between 6,000,000 and 70,000,000 French francs it had on deposit with American and other foreign banks in Paris, transferring the accounts to Holland and Switzerland, because it learned the French government was contemplating a seizure of the money in order to collect the indemnity past due, and which the Germans said could not be paid. If this dispatch is authentic the publication of it will react upon the Germans in their pleas for leniency in reparations demands.

French financiers and French statesmen are keeping a very close watch upon Germany and the actions of the German government. France is the next-door neighbor and the two have been enemies for centuries. France knows that Germany hates everything French, just as France hates everything German, and that the German government would be glad to inconvenience France by refusing to pay the indemnity. For this reason, perhaps more than any other, France has opposed granting Germany additional time for payment or any loophole through which Germany might escape some of the debt. Besides, France needs the money Germany owes her, for France suffered in the war in a way Germany meant her to suffer, but which Germany herself escaped. Naturally France insists that Germany be made to pay.—Anniston Star.

TAXING THE BREAKFAST TABLE.

It was the boast of the protectionists in the time of Dingley that, tax manufacturers as they might, the Republican party still left the breakfast table free.

Today we have the Republican party voting the highest tariff on sugar in fifty years. We must go back to the administration of President Grant to find a parallel for the $2.30 full tariff and $1.48 against Cuban importations which Senator Smoot, spokesman for the beet sugar interests of the country, has driven through the Senate.

Consumers already have had cause to remark the increasing price of sugar. It became very noticeable just at the time when housewives and farmers' wives needed sugar for canning purposes. Today it is being sold in 100-pound lots in some Nashville stores at $7.50. It runs as high as 10 cents a pound retail in rural stores. In Chicago sugar is being rationed at 12 cents a pound.

Cuba, which produces cane sugar, the best sugar to be had, had a large surplus in 1921, while the 1922 crop is of huge proportions.

The beet sugar interests, which produce a comparatively small part of the sugar used in this country, sought to bring pressure on the Cuban government to order a curtailment of sugar acreage. A letter written by Senator Smoot to General Crowder, official representative of the United States at Havana, revealed the Senator in a mood to trade lower duties for a shorter Cuban crop.

The New York World exposed this scheme of Senator Smoot and the copy of the letter has been written into the Congressional Record and its authenticity admitted by the Senator from Utah.

There is no element of protection for American labor in the duties just approved. The protection is in the form of a bounty for the beet sugar planters and refiners. It is a license for them to mulct the American public to the extent of 2.31 cents on every pound of sugar consumed in this country.

Few, if any, Americans are employed in the beet sugar fields. The crop is harvested on a contract labor basis. Foreigners with large families are in demand by beet sugar planters. The head of the family puts his wife and children to work in the field and it is no unusual thing for boys and girls four and five years old to be used for this purpose.

The beet sugar interests believe in grinding the little bodies of children into profits as well as squeezing the American consumer as hard as the Republican Congress will permit.

The vote in the Senate was 37 to 35. Two "sugar Senators" from Louisiana made up the margin that insured victory for the Smoot program. Louisiana never is safe for Democracy when sugar is the issue.

The Underwood tariff act provided a duty of $1.20 and $1.00 per 100 pounds of sugar. The emergency tariff act increased these rates to $2.00 and $1.60. The McCumber-Fordney bill adds another 30 cents to the former and 24 cents to the latter.

In a year when sugar ought to be cheaper than at any time in the past two decades because of the abundance of supply, the price is sent soaring by artificial means.

The breakfast table now stands taxed.—Nashville Tennessean.

The Alabama Cotton Pool Association has made the necessary arrangements for plenty of money with which to finance the cotton crop of the south. The money was forthcoming from the War Finance branch of the national government, and Wall street will not be appealed to for the necessary funds with which to handle it. Another feature in the program of this great pool, is the fact that the thousand so of bales of cotton which will be handled by the association for its members, will be insured by Alabama companies. The association is already functioning and transacting business in the southern part of the state, and in 30 days more the business will be general over the state. Great things are expected from this effort. It starts off well.

A TRAIN OF THOUGHTS FOR SABBATH AND OTHER DAYS

By J. E. Blair

"The King greatly desires thy beauty". Because the Great King referred to wishes nothing of ours for himself—all our debts to God are payable to His creatures—the scripture text must be taken to mean that "the King desires you to be beautiful.

Now beauty is God's handwork, not ours.

"Minerva, the Inventress of the lute, flung it aside when she her countenance surveyed, distorted in a fountain as she played". Wise Minerva! She threw away her dearest invention, the minute she saw it marred her beauty. The significance of her choice is plainly seen when we reflect that in the last analysis—"beauty is goodness". Do we ever become devil deluded enough to let the cheap foolish inventions of our minds, mar our beauty?

Minerva's water-looking class told her she could be unlovely. Does your mirror ever convey to you a like message?

Does a flabby, coarse face ever stare you in the eye? Then cast aside too much food; and cease to think coarse thoughts. Do you appear proud and scornful?

"Pride goeth before destruction and a haughty spirit before a fall"—The Bible.

Does your looking glass show your eyes to be uncertain and shifty? Many people do love a fat man, despite the sentiment of a well known song; but only God himself and his mother loves a shyster.

Cast aside cunning devices; just as Minerva did her lute, for such damaging sins will leave their ugly marks, and damn your soul.

Does your mouth show up weak? It is said that nature makes all our features, but our mouths—but that we make them what they are. So call on your will power and buck that chin to the front! Hold those lips firm. By so doing you can at least come up. Hamlet's advice—"If you haven't a virtue, assume one." But too much stress should not be laid on facial expressions for "God looketh on the heart". But there is the beauty of expression of the human eye, that no kind of features can destroy. If you are healthy in body, mind and soul, the "shine" of the eye will tell it, although your features may seem positively ugly.

The love of God—that "light that never shone on land or sea," will light up the most homely face and make it beautiful. Have you such a love? Through our divinely lighted eyes, "there falls as through the jeweled glass in chancel walls, a fragrant of His mercy's golden ray."

And since God's image was originally set up within us, the biggest thing we have to do is to clear out our soul-houses. Whatever we have—whether of unholy ambitions, or selfish laziness, and all devices contrary to the Spirit of truth. Cast them aside. They will spoil your beauty—a thing the Great King greatly desires if retained. Cast them aside just as Minerva did her lute, when she saw it spoiling her beauty.

Some Men I Have Known.

In the good old days, which were nothing more than childhood days, so called because of the fact that childhood enjoys and is not enthralled with the worrying problems of life, because there were others who did that and left to them to enjoy.

The citizenship of the country in the days to which I refer, planned judiciously and executed faithfully. Thoroughness was one of the cardinal principles upon which these of that period build, and today can be seen the material effects which still stand as strong evidence of this plan faithfully pursued.

If a fence was to be built, a building reared, or any improvement made of whatever character, there was that careful planning, and careful execution of every detail carried out from the beginning to the end.

William A. Orr, one of the early settlers of this country, who had a magnificent estate just south of the old town of Danville, was one of just such men as here depicted, a gentleman of gentlemen, broad minded, chivalrous, gentle as a woman, but as firm as the rock of Gibraltar.

During my childhood days it was the custom of Mr. Orr to be often at my father's home, for they were fast friends. On his large plantation could be seen the evidences of this careful planning spoken of above.

There was the large barn, carefully planned, and built with the idea in mind to provide a great storehouse for such products of the farm which were to be housed and cared for. Then the old horsepower cotton gin, operated by horse power, situated on the farm, where the cotton of the plantation was to be ginned and cared for, and where the old slaves made merry with the familiar plantation songs of that period. At that time the cotton markets were widely scattered and far apart. Huntsville was the main cotton market for North Alabama, and days were required in which to transport the cotton to this market and return home.

Then the granary. A small, well-built house, where the small grain raised on the farm was to be cared for, with provision made for removal.

BOND REDUCED.

Fred Brown, negro, was arraigned before Judge O. Kyle at 10 o'clock today, when habes corpus proceedings were heard, instituted by his lawyer, Melvin Hutson, seeking to show why his bond should not be lowered. Brown was placed in the county jail several days ago, charged with violating the prohibition laws, and grand larceny. It is alleged that he overpowered a deputy making the arrest and took from him a pistol. The gun is still missing. Judge Kyle reduced the bond from $1,700 to $1,000.

To the voters of Morgan County:

I sincerely thank you for the vote given me in the recent primary and should I have been elected, you may be assured I would have endeavored to faithfully perform the duties of the office that I sought.

To the Citizens and Voters of Decatur:*I Am a Candidate For Mayor of Decatur
at the Ensuing Election
September 18th, Next

For the past several months many citizens of Decatur, both men and women, have asked me to be a candidate. Everyone that has mentioned the subject has complained of the existing immoral conditions, the open violation of the prohibition laws and the utter disregard of all the laws by gamblers and loafers, and adding that they want a change which would put the City on a higher moral plane.

I favor the strict enforcement of the prohibition laws and of all laws that will promote a higher and better citizenship, so if the good people who really want to better conditions in Decatur will "stand up and be counted" we will get the desired change of conditions. I pledge myself to do all that I can toward that end.

I have no personal feelings in the matter, no friends to reward nor enemies to punish, but I do believe in all people obeying the law. I shall make an open and fair canvass on my merits and not on the demerits of any one, following this statement by letters to the individual voters.

I wish to say to the voters that marking of ballots for identification is unlawful and will not be done in this election.

Respectfully,

H. A. SKEGGS

EUGENE O'BRIEN TO BE FEATURED IN NEW MELODRAMATIC PIECE

Eugene O'Brien's latest Selznick picture, "Chivalrous Charley," is announced as the feature attraction at the Princess Theatre for Saturday. "Chivalrous Charley" is a melodramatic piece filled with action and comedy and is said to be far removed from the usual line of O'Brien pictures.

What with amusing situations to begin with, as Charley Reilly just back from the West, exercises his natural tendency to serve the ladies, and thereby gets himself completely in bad, the story advances with each recurring blunder on the part of a chivalrous hero until it seems as if something must soon explode. And something finally does explode in the person of Charley's uncle, who pays the bills for Charley's experiences as a Sir Galahad. As a power in the city's political life, Mr. Reilly, senior is able to engage a number of gangsters to assist him in teaching his nephew a practical lesson which is calculated to cure that young man of his gallant tendencies.

The plans include a female decoy, kidnapping, and all the attendant thrilling situations which these suggest. But after getting away with a jump, the action gets out of the control of the principals and in the end attracts the participation of the police. Then follows the final round of the excitement—with an exciting display of motorcycle riding, bridge jumping and other thrilling adventures.

Cupid No Respector of Persons

Four years ago Miss Mary McMillan, pictured here, took a job with the County Clerk of San Diego, Cal., and issued her first marriage license. "I'll never marry," she said, as the first happy couple left the courthouse. Two years later she issued her four thousandth license and repeated her vow. Recently she issued her 7,999th license—and then decided that No. 8,000 would be for herself and Chester Duffy, the County Clerk.

COULD HARDLY STAND AT TIMES

Hips, Back and Legs Would Have That Tired Ache

Everett, Washington. "For several years I have had trouble with the lower part of my back and my hips and my legs would ache with that tired ache. I could hardly stand on my feet at times. I was always able to do my work although I did not feel good. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised and having heard several praise it I decided to try it. I feel first-rate at the present time. It has done wonders for me and I keep it in the house right along. I always recommend it to others who are sick and ailing."—Mrs. J. M. Starnes, 4032 High St., Everett, Washington.

To do any kind of work, or to play for that matter, is next to impossible if you are suffering from some form of female trouble. It may cause your back or your legs to ache, it may make you nervous and irritable. You may be able to keep up and around, but you do not feel good. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a medicine for women. It is especially adapted to relieve the cause of the trouble and then these annoying pains, aches and "no good" feelings disappear.

It has done this for many, many women; why not give it a fair trial now.

Here and there "Big Four" organizations have quit. Mr. Stone, head of the engineers, objects to his men working under supervision of soldiers with loaded rifles, when the men are not even on strike. "We won't have our men shot up," says he. Signed H. C. HUTCHISON, Chairman Publicity Committee.

Big Liquor Haul Made By Deputies

Deputies Sharpe and Hicks made one of the biggest hauls of the last two years when they captured yesterday afternoon about 3 o'clock 40 gallons of white mule, at a point on the corner of Water and Alabama streets. The deputies had a tip to the presence of this particular juice, and went straight to it. There was no effort made to conceal it, according to the deputies. The raid netted 2 five-gallon cans, 2 fifteen-gallon kegs of corn whisky.

Pursuing still further, they had located a still near Flint Creek, about where it empties into the river. Going to that point, they found a new still just completed, but had never been used. The still was just in the act of being put into operation. Ingredients for making whisky were in evidence. The still was destroyed. Early this morning a trio of deputies went to the home of Ada Horton, negro, and had no difficulty in locating a quart of whisky. They placed Ada under arrest as she was placed in the county jail pending bond.

How Chemists Detect Poison.
The usefulness of chemistry in poisoning cases is well known. It enables us to determine the nature of the poison used, the way in which it was administered and the amount given. Some poisons are so persistent that their presence can be detected even if the chemical examination is not made for weeks, or perhaps months, after death has occurred.

Etiquette of the Road.
Even if it is a good deal of trouble, motorists usually can avoid some additional trouble by stopping as soon as possible after hitting a pedestrian. And, besides, ordinary manners demand that one stop; the pedestrian nearly always does.—Kansas City Star.

Process of Making Relies Principally On Use of Ammonia

cause when the ammonia gas begins to expand things and removes the heat from the water around the cans, his A. C. L. or common salt in the water will not let the water freeze; the water within the cans is fresh, it loes freeze as the ammonia gas removes the heat from the salt water outside until in 48 hours, according to Mr. Jones, there are solid cakes of ice in the zinc cans, each weighing 300 pounds. In other words, the expanding ammonia rarefies the hydrogen and oxygen in water and makes it very cold. On a similar principle arefied air becomes very cold, as everybody knows who has been to the tops of the high mountains! If we lived in high enough mountains we would not need ice factories.

Every pencil mark every stroke of the pen, every click of the typewriter, every ounce of coal burned, every plunge of the great pumps that bring the water from the Tennessee River—everything else that is done at the ice factory, is done in order to get the ammonia to do its work—and once it has acted, you have your ice—"except" (and that word in box letters) the job is not complete until the ice is delivered into the home ice box.

Mr. Jones says he agrees with the economists who say that producing a thing is easier than getting it properly distributed. He says he starts his ice wagons at 5 o'clock a. m. and sends motor trucks to replenish them, in the hope and belief that he can get ice to every home in the Twin Cities by noon time. He says that the full capacity of his plant is over a hundred tons a day, but that never except when supplying neighboring ice plants has he had calls for so much ice. Mr. Jones says his plant can take care of the future growth of these cities for ten years to come, providing Henry Ford does not get the Muscle Shoals just down the river and start that boom for a city here of 400,000 inhabitants.
